

Long Xi took a FaceTime photo

11) Right now I'm on a log @ central park. A father and son dismounted
off of their bikes on a nearby bench, just a stone toss away. Every time I see a father and son do
even the most mundane
activities, I... envy them.
~~and~~ in the most visible
way possible...

Growing up, I'd react emotionally in these instances... I'd have to leave the vicinity just to stop crying. Years have gone by and I've realized
a few things:

- 1) I don't know what happens
behind closed doors
- 2) What they have is not what I need from my dad at the moment
- 3) I can mourn for my younger self, embrace the loss but also celebrate
the growth and the work
that has come from it

THE BEST TIMES OF DAY ARE THOSE WHEN THE SUN IS IN TRANSIT, THOSE GILDED GREETINGS AND FAREWELLS CAST BEYOND A SILVER SRAWL, SHEDDING LIGHT ONTO THE CORNERS I'VE NEVER GOTTEN TO KNOW. I WAKE UP AND FIND THAT THE FLUID OF MY EYES HAS CRYSTALIZED LIKE SYNTHETIC POLISH ON A PLASTIC DESSERT. I WATCH AS SHADOWS PARODY THE RELICS OF MY ROOM ON CREAM WALLS JOINED LIKE HANDS IN PRAYER. THE SUNSETS SPILL HONEY ONTO EVERY BANISTER, EVERY SECRET. THERE IS STRANGE NOSTALGIA IN WHAT WAS ALWAYS THERE BUT NEVER SEEN.

THE OTHER HOURS ARE SPENT SEARCHING FOR A SIMILAR SHINE IN STARS THAT DON'T BOAST AS BOLDLY YET OFFER SUSTENANCE IN FLEETING AND BEAUTIFUL WAYS: THE FRIDGE LIGHT; MY MOM; A SWIFT GLIMPSE INTO MY OWN EYES.

Gratitude list (July 10th)

- My Wisdom
- God
- Della and her beautiful words
- My Mother's never ending selfies
When she doesn't know what to say'
- The way I'm able to hold space for myself and my emotions.
- This good ass food I'm about to
fuck up
- Air and water
- My new Lamp
- I'm grateful for my health
- I'm grateful for my blackness
- I'm grateful

WHILE LIVING IN MY PARENTS'
BASEMENT, I ~~CAN~~ HEAR EVERYTHING.
IN THE MORNINGS, I'LL NOTICE
EVERYONE'S MORNING TOILET FLUSHES.
LATE-AFTNOONS, I'LL LISTEN
IN ON MY PARENTS' FIGHTS
ABOUT THE RAT EXTERMINATOR.
IN THE EVENINGS, I'LL JACK OFF
WITHOUT MAKING A SOUND.

I SPEND ALL MY TIME IN MY room TWIRLING IN CIRCLES.
ALWAYS SAMMING 2 DEEE-LITE.
E-S-P U CAN HOLD THE BIRDY
BUT THE SONG HE SINGS IS REALLY FREE

I ALSO SPEND A TON OF MY TIME
WATERING SUNFLOWERS AND --- SPENDING QUALITY TIME W MY MANTIS..... WHO BIT ME!! SHE WAS JUST BEING SILLY, NO??
COTTON-MOUTH IS A BIG Part of GUARANTINE * * * * *
FLOATING ON CLOUDS IS A NORMAL
PART OF THE DAY! THERE'S A MOTH
IN MY ROOM..... MIGHT B MY GRANDMA.
ANYWAYS... HYPNOTISING MYSELF,
TIL 2022!! SOUNDS FUN. WE'VE BIN
TRYING 2 FIND OUT... WHAT IS LOVE?
RICKY'S BRAIN VOMIT!

My uncertainty fades when I'm flying,
when I hop on my bike and soar through these streets. I'm always looking for new places, and even after twenty years in this small town
I still manage to find them. A cul-de-sac, or a road that leads to nowhere,
forgotten by even the people who used to live there. People are always leaving.
We got a new air conditioner last week,
my parents haven't spoken since. I watch as their tensions rise, and with nowhere to go, will there be a breaking point? Don't get involved, it's better that way.
I go to the garage, hop on my bike and start to pedal. For my uncertainty fades when I'm flying.

Our western / global north world and morality,
as a whole, prioritize ~~the~~ winners
over those without "luck" on their side.
~~This isn't luck if it's~~ stolen opportunities from the underdogs? ^{counts}
A system that relies on the winners winning and the losers ~~losing~~ is self destructive, ↗ ALWAYS ROOT FOR THE UNDERDOG

im literally 14
this pandemic shit
is crazy!

I get a lot of direct sunlight in my room, which is nice. However, sometimes I'll glance out my window, notice how long the shadows have gotten, and think to myself: "Well, those goes another day."

As the days start getting longer I can feel myself anticipating those summer nights where I can see the sunrise through the crack in my curtains as I fall asleep.

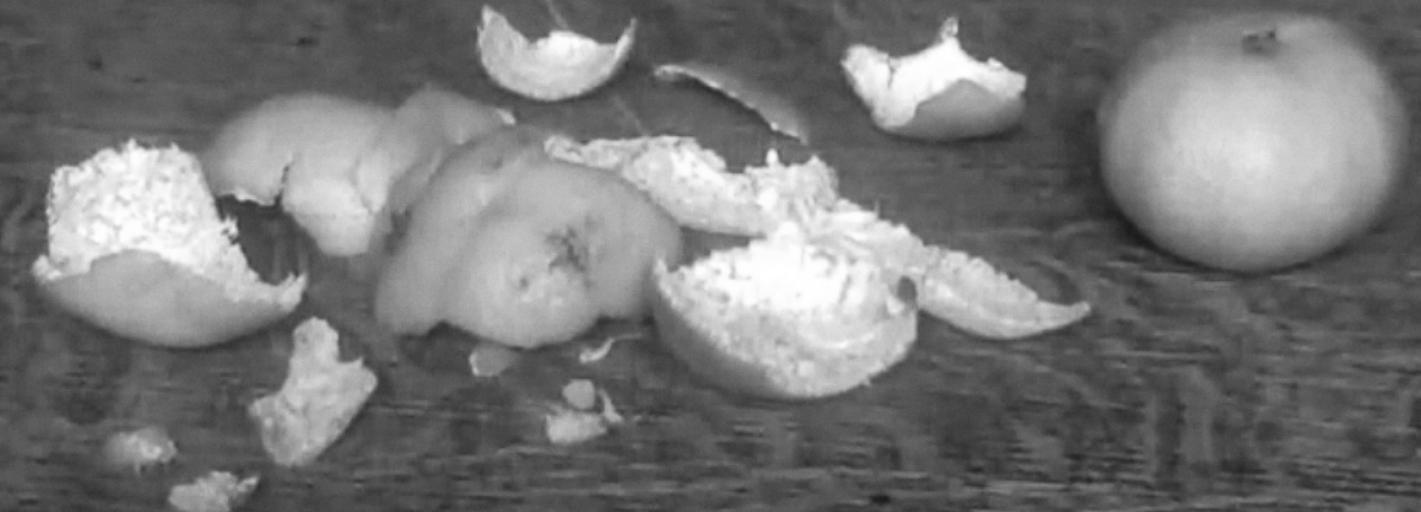

there's this small bakery on nanaimo & hastings called Hong Hongs. they have gingerbread men cookies available all year round, & a woman & her husband run it. Hong Hongs is a liminal space - one you spend five minutes in, tops, no more - & so you have to be very still in there to feel what i feel. most days, the woman is the one who serves you at the counter. she will only say what she needs to say to you - hello - what would you like - how many - three dollars, please - & on my worst days i have come in & bought butter tarts just to hear her say exactly that, in the same way, every time. while i walk home eating the tart out of a small paper bag, i like to imagine empires falling, the ground splitting underneath my bare feet, nuclear fallout coming down like icing sugar, only wreckage on the horizon while every living thing - god included - kneels at the altar, breathing one last breath together, and she'd still be there, at the counter at Hong Hongs, with her year-round gingerbread.

hello
what would you like
how many
three dollars, please.

Listen I will KMS
if I have to listen
to sports on the radio

I walk far and long enough so that the smell of smoke on my clothing and hair is gone when I come back home. We talk on the phone and he sounds gentle and sad. I tried justifying it, but it never worked. I'm back after an hour, it always feels longer than that.

It's what I asked for but it isn't what I pictured. I don't have to talk to you and you don't have to talk to me either. Though I still worry about saying the wrong thing. I laugh at you and you laugh at me too. I'm no longer guilty or confused. I no longer seek the things I don't have.

I'm an air sign and I NEED to explore. I always knew I was rest less; that's all my teacher is in high school talked about. But I ~~didn't~~ never thought of it as the ~~sign~~ they ~~assumed~~ claimed it was. Since the "pandemic" started my need to explore and MOVE has been a blessing and a curse. on one hand I miss outside, I miss my ~~friends~~ friends, I miss random hookups, I miss just chillin in the way we did before. On the other hand I am forced to move everyday, to read something new, to go on 2 hour walks just so I can feel like the world is still the same and all. But the truth is that I feel weird everyday. Not weird in a sad way. Weird in the most annoyingly hopeful way.

I know that this is just a phase and like like the wilds or whatever, it'll pass. I really want to explore and go back to the way things were.

But in all honesty I have learnt so much by pacing anxiously from my couch to my room ~~to my couch~~ wondering when this would end. And I can't wait to see the closure I gained when the world is open again.
